in the ordinary computation of the amount placed at the disposal of the Administration and the probable "deficienties," make a grand total of something over a hundred millions at the command of the President for the fiscal year ending the 86th of next June. The table goes further, and sets forth the amount proposed to be appropriated by the respective Houses, which shows that the sum of $83,-177,905 57 was sought to be appropriated by the Senate. When it is remembered that the Senate is overwhelmingly democratic, the argument that any combination of the opposition may have run the amount beyond the desires of the democratic party, falls to the ground. We have not space, just now, for the entire table, but subjoin the comments of our Baltimore cotemporary, in which the whole subject is pointedly brought to view. It says: "The people of Baltimore in these hard times are sufficiently alive to the necessity of economy. We avail ourselves of the occasion to show them what the National Administration has cost and is costing; and this we do exclusively from official documents. We invite their attention to a table prepared from official sources and by hands alone competent to do it, exhibiting the course and results of the financial legislation of the last session of Congress-which, with the addition of the permanent appropriations, and the indefinate appropriations carefully estimated, and the amounts by former appropriation bills left at the disposal of the government will show the actual gross means placed at the disposal of the government. These last items are usually overlook d or kept out of sight in such estimates, are touched only cursorily by official documents and are seldom laid before the public. The people thus almost always have an inaccurate idea of the actual aggregate cost of the government.

Another important topic necessary fair appreciation of the conduct of the Government, is the objects of appropriation; and that is especially necessary now to be considered, because the present administration, while greatly exaggerating some, have greatly reduced or entirely expunged others; and it of importance to know that these latter Y. they must be provided in this present fiscal year (1858) will be used principally in and therefore properly belong to the next fiscal year," (1859.) They are in fact for the use of the Utah campaign now progressing. If therefore we change one-half to the 1859, we shall have the

The Worcester (Md.) Shield says a correspondent at Newton writes as follows: "We have living in this place a negro woman, aged about fitty, named Hannah Smith, who presents the rare phenomenon of a negro turning white. This change has been produced The Montgomery Advertiser and Slav.

The Montgomery Advertiser recently made a violent on slaught upon Judge Green and the Lebanon Law School, because of Judge G's alleged anti-slavery sentiments. We believe that same paper is one of Mr. Bechan-An's most ardent supporters and we beg leave to commend to its serious perusal the following sentiments, uttered by Mr. Buchanan in a speech in Congress on the 11th of April

"Permit me here, Mr. Chairman, for a mo nent, to speak upoh a subject, to which I have never before adverted upon this floor, and to which I trust, I may never again have occasion to advert. I mean the subject of Slavery. I believe it to be a great political, and a great moral evel. I thank God, my lot has been cast in a State where it does not exist. It has been a curse entailed upon us by that nation which makes it a subject of represchite our Institutions." We ask that this passage from the personal and political reminiscences of the President he admitted into the cogitations of the President's Alabama organ, when it next purposes an attack upon an honorable, upright and sound Southern gentleman.

Hon. James B. Clay. It is well known that John W. Forney was the chief manager in all that pertained to the canvass in Pennsylvania in 1856. He was entrusted with every secret, and had the entire control of all the financial matters. James B. Clay was invited to visit Pennsylvania during that canvass, and, we believe, was a guest at Wheatland during a portion of his sojourn in that State. Hear what Forney says of the degenerate son ."

"Mr. Forney, in his Westchester address." ays the Pittsburg Gazette, "stated that Mr. Buchanan himself prepared a portion of the speech which James B. Clay delivered on sevral occasions in Pennsylvania, in the last Presidential campaign. This places the 'unworthy son of a gallant sire' in a still more degraded position. It was bad enough in him to oppose his father's political friends, without coming the mere mouth-piece of his father's personal enemy. How James Buchanan must have despised this 'denegerate son,' even when he was availing himself of his ungracious services! Prentice has said some severe things of this hopeful politician, but when we take his character fairly into consideration, we must admit that he has treated him more mildly than he deserves."

A Good Resolution.

The "American General Committee of New York," by a vote of 29 yeas to 13 nays, have esolved not to unite, in the fall election, with any other party, "especially with the Republican party," but to nominate and support candidates of their own .- As the Black Republicans have been industriously courting an alliance with them, we suppose that this reso-Intion will convince Southern Democratic paners that a portion of the Northern Americans are not willing to make common cause with the Freesoilers. Mr. J. T. Phillips, the Secretary of the committee, writes to the N.

In political circles it is generally undertofore maintained a character and stand of diametrical hostility to anything in the shape of a fusion, union compromise or coalition of the "American" party with any party, and esexially with the "Republican" party, at the ening municipal election; or at any election, or at any time or under any circumstances, or for any consideration or cause whatever .-And I venture to say, will continue to do so.

> From the Memphis Appeal Constitutional Convention.

We are not aware as to what reasons or notives influenced the last Legislature in abmitting the question of a new Constitu- tation. tional Convention to the people, but of one thing we are satisfied, and that is, that the times demand it. The banking system of our State needs a thorough reform, if not an entire eradication, and it is a question for the people to determine whether they will longer entrust this reform to future Legislatures or whether they will make the reform more thorough, permanent and secure by constitutional restraints and prohibitions. The latter method, in our judgement, is the most wise and most certain and most secure means of accomplishing the ends desired. We may in future numbers enter more mi nutely into the discussion of such reforms as are most desirable and beneficial, but for the present it is sufficient to say that we are willing to entrust the question to the assembled wisdom of a Convention of the people. In addition to a reform in our banking sys tem, a conventional interest law is needed. We learn that such a law was opposed at the last session of the Legislature by several members, not because they were opposed to it upon principle, but for the reason that the present Constitution declares that interest shall be uniform throughout the State. Let this objection be removed then by the new Constitution, and let the Legislature be empowered to enable the people to borrow and lend money at a stipulated rate of interest, as high as ten, twelve or fifteen per cent, per annum, and the country will feel instantaneous release. Such a law will not only keep what money we have at home in circulation, but it will invite capital from abroad. Another amendment of the Constitution is needed, prohibiting the Legislature from running the State into debt, beyond a specified limit, for internal improvement or other purposes. In times of high prosperity, legislators are apt to become produgal of the public funds and reckless of the public credit, and hence the importance of Constitutional restraints being thrown around them. And again, as Constitutions are made to protect the minorities from wrongs inflicted by majorities, a provision is needed in this State prohibiting the assessment of a tax upon one portion of the people by a vote of the other, to carry forward such works or improvem uts as the majority may deem essential or advantageous to the public or general good. The principle is radically wrong, and ought to be prohibited by Constitutional en-

Let them not cease to agreate the question until the day of election, the 2d of September, as it is now in their pow-r to relieve themselves of a brood of evils inflicted upon them by years of reckless and nuwise legislation. A vote will be taken on the same day for a Judge to supply the vacancy on the Supreme Beach, occassioned by the death of the late W. R. Hanns, and it should not be forgotten that the number of votes required to authorize the proposed Convention, is a majority of the whole number cast for Governor at the last August elections. Then, we say again, let the vote and let us have the Convention. THE HARVEST MOON.-This year the harlegs and breast are entirely white, with the exception of some spots, varying in size from a dime to a half dime, dispersed over her body and limbs."

From the Huntsville (Ala.) Advocate. Col. Yancy's Mount Vernon Address. Saturday was a gala day in Huntsville Crowds were in attendance from the country and many from a distance to hear the Address by Hon. Wm. L. Yancey, of Montgomery, in behalf of the Ladies Mount Vernon Association of the Union, Preparations had been made to have the proceedings in the Court House yard, but owing to the rain during the night preceeding, the lowering aspect of the heavens, and the State of Col. The Orator was escorted by the Rifles to the Church, which was filled above and below, without accommodating one-half of the persons present in town. Feeble health was manifest in s voice and bearing; yet as he proceeded. seemed to gather strength as well as inspiration from his theme, and gave out bursts of eloquence and feeling. It was a chaste and ued effort, in great good taste, devoted entirely to the subject, the Mount Vernon Association, the character and services of Washington, and the dobt due by posterity to his memory. The analysis of the character of the great Patriot as a man, a soldier, and a stateswas just, discriminating and eloquent. Washington was brought to the mind's eve ntering and overcoming difficulties in the field and in the cabinet, by his calm judgment, with his pen, and by his exampleequal to every emergency and every situation-greater than hero and not less than No one could hear the address without having his feelings of gratitude and revereuce warmed up and increased, and without

The New Custom House.

The work upon this massave structure proceeds so slowly, that it is possible only at long intervals to find anything new to tescribe. The visitor to the premises will, however, now find the grand business hall of the building so near completion as to form some idea of its magnitude and of the elaborteness of its finish. It is one of the largest rooms to be named on this continent. The entire walls of the room consist of panneled marble. Through it longitudinally, on either side, at a proper distance from the walls, is a row of marble pillars of majestic proportions. The caps of these pillars, copied in style from those of a Grecian temple, have some additional ornaments which add to their beauty and change, in some respect, the current of association which they suggest. These caps cost $6,000 apiece. In the wail of this room nearest the river blocks of statuary are inserted, consisting of a full length of Gen. Jackson, the arms of the State of Louisiana, and a full length of Bienville, the founder of the city. This work was done in this city, and exhibits good taste and a skillful use of the chisel. There are other points of the building that begins to assume some form of what is designed to be presented when the building shalf have been completed; but, at the present rate of progress it is not improbable that the tendency of the public mind towards direct taxation may have changed the whole method of obtaining our revenue, and the Customhouse be no longer needed for the object contemplated when its foundations were first laid. -N. We have frequently heard of snakes visiting houses, and of their sometimes having been found to and under beds, but we do not recollect ever of having heard of as remark-able an escape from an awful death from a snake as the following, related to us by Mr. r. W. Bliss, who was present wheh it occurred. About five weeks ago, two children of Mr. Jacob Schell, living about three and a half miles west of Washington—the one aged nine and the other four years—becoming weary from the excessive heat, lay down on the bed shortly after dinner and were soon fast asleep. Some time during the afternoon, Mr. Schell and our informant, who had been at work inthe field, were compelled to seek the house for shelter from a heavy shower. They had scarcely entered when Mrs. Schell went to the bed to replace some of the covering which had become displaced, when the horrible sight met their eyes, the head of a huge rattlesnake projecting from between the children, and its body in close proximity to theirs. Mrs. S. was of course much frightened, and there is not much doubt but that it would have terminated fatally to at least one of the children, had it not been for the providential arrival of the two men, who, with more presence of mind, quietly removed them from either side f the bed at the same time, without alarming the snake, thus undoubtedly saving their lives. His "snakeship" was then unceremoniously dispatched. It proved to be a very large one, with six rattles in its tail. How t got there is a mystery .- Peoria Union 15th. He would object to playing in a private room, preferring to have his play looked over; he would leave the selection of the arena, we believe, to his opponent; but we do not bind ourselves to state more than an outine of his views. He would like to play daily-say from noon till the game was ended but would object to leave games unfinished. and would, we hope, insists on some plan of regulating the time, which, without limitng the period really required by his opponent for calculating his move, would prevent all shabby recourse to delay, such as sitting for hours over a single move when the king is in check and has but one square to go to.
